

1,400-Unit Beltway Plaza Plan Presented by Owners to Council

by Thomas X. White

The Greenbelt City Council scheduled work session with owners and management of the Beltway Plaza shopping center on September 13 was clear evidence that the summer vacation was over and it was time to get back to work. Although the meeting was labeled a “Stakeholder” session, it became clear that the main item for discussion was the proposed Conceptual Site Plan (CSP) that Beltway Plaza officials had submitted to the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission (M-NCPPC) on August 8. The CSP is for new development/ redevelopment proposed for the rear of the mall adjacent to and facing Breezewood Drive.

All five councilmembers were in attendance, as were Terri Hruby of the city’s Community Development and Planning Department and Tarek Bolden, the department’s newest staff planner, replacing Ethan Bindernagel who left this summer for a job on the West Coast. City Manager Michael McLaughlin arrived later in the meeting.

Representatives of Beltway Plaza were Marc “Kap” Kapastin, general counsel; Fred Wines, president; and David Sullivan, vice president, Development Operations, of the Quantum Companies, owners of the shopping center.

Update on Changes

The discussion began with Wines’ update on recent changes to the shopping center tenant mix. Foot Locker, an existing tenant, has taken over a portion of the now vacated AMC Academy 6 theater space. The Jeepers! amusement space is being taken over by a new organization, “Planet Fun,” and the space will undergo significant $600,000 to $1 million renovation and improvement.

The AMC Academy 8 theater complex, now being run independently by Beltway Plaza Management, will also undergo a phased conversion to all stadium seating. According to Wines, the conversion will be underway by October and completed by the end of year holiday period.

The conversion will take place in two theaters at a time. When completed the total capacity of the eight new stadium-seating venues will be approximately 1,300 seats.

In the area of the shopping center outside the enclosed mall, the pad site (stand-alone building) formerly used by Mattress Discounters is being redeveloped for use by a new Chevy Chase Bank branch and by a relocated FedEx/Kinko’s space. In this regard, Hruby noted that the city planning staff has raised concerns with the proposed plans for this pad site in relation to the recently submitted CSP. Specifically they are concerned about proposed changes along Greenbelt Road.

In response to a question from council regarding proposed new tenant(s) for the vacant Sports Authority building, Beltway Plaza representatives noted that its fate would be involved in the CSP process.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts asked the Beltway Plaza representatives if they had a role in the approval of language precluding “Theaters” from the proposed development in the Metroland, LLC North Core. Kapastin was quick in his reply that they were not responsible for the language. He was surprised as anyone that it had been included. He reiterated that the only thing they communicated to the county and to the Metroland developers was that “the plan called for mixed use and upscale retail and we don’t want something (there) that would look like us.”

Another question from Mayor Judith Davis related to the Metrobus stop under the parking structure in the front of the shopping center. She was concerned with the overall appearance of the public stop, its inadequate lighting and the condition of the benches. The Beltway Plaza representatives were not aware of those conditions and promised to make any necessary improvements.

Tax Forgiveness

Another item raised after the arrival of City Manager McLaughlin was the need for council to take another look at

Tom Renahan Describes His Nine Months in Iraq

by Sandra Lange

“Iraq is a difficult environment to work in,” exclaimed Tom Renahan, Greenbelt resident who has spent the last nine months in Iraq. “You hear a bomb blast that wakes you up in the morning. The building you are living in moves. You look out the window and see black smoke. Later, you hear that 20 people were killed. You worry about your employees, your friends,” Renahan muses. “There is a lot of stress.”

Nevertheless, Renahan plans to return to Iraq in a few weeks to resume his work for the American Development Foundation, an organization under contract to the U.S. Agency for International Development. He has the dual job of managing an anti-corruption program and a human rights program. His goal is to help Iraqi citizens create and maintain an effective government.

To do this, he organizes workshops throughout the country for civic leaders who are encouraged to design projects leading to democratic processes and accountability. Projects might be hanging anti-corruption posters near government buildings reminding workers to be honest.

Other projects might be producing a play or a puppet show with the message that stealing medicine from hospitals and selling it on the black market is not ethical even if one is assisting a family member. Nepotism, a strong cultural value in Iraq, defies efforts to reward people based on merit rather than family ties, Renahan affirms with evident frustration.

Living and working in a two-block, walled and heavily armed compound in the Baghdad green zone, Renahan is confronted daily with the effects of corruption, illiteracy, fear and violence. He bemoans the fact that women have fewer rights under the new Iraqi constitution than they did under Saddam Hussein. Schools are operating, he says, but many Iraqis do not attend. Fifty per-

School Resource Officers Present Upbeat Report

by Barbara Hopkins

Greenbelt’s School Resource Officer program is going well, according to the end-of-year report for the 2005-2006 school year given by MPO Marty Parker and MPO John Rogers at the Greenbelt City Council meeting on September 11.

Three-Year Comparison

In a comparison of the last school year with the previous two, the officers said on-campus complaints had increased slightly at both Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) and Greenbelt Middle School (GMS). At the high school Parker related the increase to a rise in thefts from improperly secured lockers. The increase at the middle school he thought came about because parents wanted to charge student perpetrators more often than in previous years.

On the other hand, Rogers said incident reports and student contact reports had decreased at ERHS because he knows the kids and can address misbehavior without filing a report. Numbers in both of these categories increased at GMS this past year. Truancy was down at both schools.

Numbers in most categories remained relatively constant over the three-year period at both Greenbelt Elementary School and Springhill Lake Elementary School.

School Programs

Both officers are involved in a number of programs at the elementary schools, including

Recycling Group Selects Trash Hot Spot for Cleanup

by Barbara Hopkins

A trash hot spot identified in Greenbelt’s forest preserve on the Gardenway side of the Gladys Spellman Pedestrian Overpass of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway will be included in periodic organized cleanups. This project would constitute part of the city’s involvement in an action plan for a cleaner Potomac River watershed.

At the direction of the Greenbelt City Council, the Recycling and Environment Advisory Committee (REAC) selected a hot spot from five areas nominated after the city advertised for public input.

The action plan for a cleaner Potomac watershed was developed at a Trash Summit sponsored March 16 by the Alice Ferguson Foundation, an organization based in Accokeek promoting personal environmental responsibility. Mayor Judith Davis and REAC Chair Neal Barnett and member Marti Galvin attended the summit and Davis signed the Potomac Watershed Trash Treaty action plan for the City of Greenbelt.

The goal of the Trash Summit is to create a trash-free Potomac River watershed by 2013 through “public education campaigns, enforcement and legislation, new technologies, best management

Water Quality Monitoring Forum, Saturday, Sept. 30

by Shirley Middleton

The Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group (BCWWG) is hosting a Water Quality Monitoring Information Forum on Saturday, September 30 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The aim is to establish an understanding of what testing has been done in the past as well as to learn about the issues involved in starting a monitoring program.

The forum will highlight the work of scientists and environmentalists from various organizations. Represented among the speakers will be John Galli, Metropolitan Washington Council of Government’s (MWCOC) Anacostia Restoration Program manager; Paul Wilson, Natural Resources biologist with Maryland Department of Natural Resources; and Greenbelter Harriette L. Phelps, Professor Emeritus of the University of the District of Columbia. Eleanor Roosevelt High School students Emma Claye, Johntel Greene, Chelsea McGlynn and Ngoc Nguyen will report on the Watershed Integrated Study Program that they have done as part of their research projects.

After the other presentations, Mike Smith, chair of the Friends of Sligo Creek Water Quality Committee, will present the success and challenge of starting their monitoring program. The final part of the program will be an open discussion to help determine how the BCWWG should organize its monitoring program and to form a formal water quality monitoring team. All interested people are invited to participate.

Thanks

The blood drive on September 15, 2006, at the Community Center was a huge success with a large number of blood donors. The drive helped the Red Cross meet the continued need in Iraq and with United States hurricane victims.

As usual, Red Cross personnel and volunteers contributed to the success of the blood drive.

The next blood drive will be held in the Community Center on Friday, November 17 from noon to 6 p.m. Those not contacted by the Red Cross for an appointment should call Janet Goldberg at 301-397-2212 for an appointment. Walk-ins are welcome to fill in for those who did not make their scheduled appointments.

Poms Regrouping

With reference to the September 7 letter asking where were the ERHS Poms: As the parent of a Pom I wanted to make sure that everyone knew that we were not excluded from the parade because of the politicians. The team lost many of its members from last year and has a very new young team this year. The coach from last year quit a couple of weeks before school started and the new coach did not feel that the girls were ready to represent ERHS in the parade. It had nothing to do with the politicians and was just very unfortunate that they could not march.

Library Hosts Banned Book Week

by Karen Seaton,
Library Information Staff

During September, the Greenbelt Library celebrates “Banned Books Week: Celebrating the Freedom to Read.” Observed since 1982, this annual event sponsored by the American Library Association reminds Americans not to take this precious democratic freedom for granted. Staff have mounted a display of “banned books.” Drop by to see what some of those books are (which have been selected by the American Library Association) and read one or more of them.

Want to catch up on what the Greenbelt City Council is doing but unable to make the meeting? The council provides the library with videotapes of past meetings, which may be borrowed with a library card.

A library card gives access to nearly everything on the worldwide web in print and provides personal assistance to help find information people are searching for. This month, the American Library Association (ALA) reminds people to “Get carded at your library” to enjoy all the important things that can be accessed with a library card. People of all ages, including babies, are encouraged to drop by to get a library card in September. Nobody is ever too young or too old to get a card. Every child, especially a school-aged child, should have a card to check out books for school assignments or just for fun.

The library now owns an extensive collection of popular television series on DVD that may be borrowed at no charge. A few examples include “Seinfeld,” “Lost,” “West Wing,” “Sopranos,” “Six Feet Under,” “Sex and the City,” “I Love Lucy,” “Law and Order,” “The Twilight Zone” and many more. These materials can be borrowed on an adult library card for three weeks plus one renewal (if not reserved) at no cost to the borrower.

For more information come to the library, call 301-345-5800 or visit the website at www.pgcmlls.info. Renew books by phone, online or in person. Up to 75 items may be borrowed with each library card.

Lose Yourself in “The Illusionist”

“The Illusionist” opens at the Old Greenbelt Theatre on Friday. It is hard to imagine a more appropriate venue for this film, starring Edward Norton. Grandson of Columbia, Maryland, designer James Rouse and native of that planned community, Norton himself worked for a time combating urban decay before his Oscar-nominated debut performance 10 years ago in “Primal Fear.”

Set in turn-of-the-19th-century Vienna, Norton plays a magician who falls in love with Jessica Biel’s character, the Duchess Sophie. To stay true to the low-tech setting of the film, Norton learned sleight-of-hand rather than rely on CGI (special effects) for most of his illusions. Romantic tension is created by Sophie’s engagement to Prince Leopold (Rufus Sewell); Paul Giamatti, as the ambitious Chief Inspector Uhl, is caught in the middle. The film was written and directed by Neil Burger, based on a short story by Steven Millhauser. Variouslly described as a fantasy, mystery and romantic thriller, “The Illusionist” is rated PG-13 (some sexuality and violence) and runs 110 minutes.

Forest Preserve Task Force Presents Report

by Barbara Hopkins

Forest Preserve Task Force Chair Keith Chernikoff presented the Greenbelt City Council with the task force’s final report and a draft of the Forest Preserve Maintenance and Management Guidelines at council’s regular meeting on September 11. The report addresses issues with which the task force was originally charged. Chernikoff thanked Celia Craze, director of the city’s planning and community development department, for her invaluable assistance as he told council the task force had fulfilled its three-fold mission.

One charge to the task force was to survey property the city holds as open space and evaluate each parcel for inclusion in the Forest Preserve. The report names four parcels that the task force recommends for inclusion into the preserve and five it does not.

The latter are park areas the report states could be retained as forests through means other than inclusion into the Forest Preserve. The task force suggested not compromising the need for public park areas by including every city park in the preserve.

The bulk of the report relates to the maintenance and management plan for the preserve, which the task force recommends be specific in many respects to individual parcels.

The third charge for the task force was to determine the need and feasibility of a standing committee charged with managing the preserve. The report recommends establishment of a Forest Preserve Advisory Committee to provide stewardship of the preserve through interaction and consultation with other city advisory boards, committees and other organizations both within and outside of the city government.

Copies of the 64-page report and supporting documents are available at the Municipal Building for those interested. City Clerk Kathleen Gallagher said it is hoped an abbreviated version will soon be on the city’s web site. A worksession for council to discuss the report and documents will be scheduled sometime this fall.

Corrections

In last week’s Holy Cross Lutheran Church ad, a wrong service time was provided. The actual service times are 8 a.m. Worship Service, 9:15 a.m. Sunday School/Bible Study and 10:30 a.m. Worship Service. The News Review regrets the error.

We Goofed! The 5 a.m. finishing time for last Tuesday’s late-night editing crew took its toll.

While early returns had put Fred Robinson in the lead for County Council in District 4, before we left it was Ingrid Turner who was the front-runner. The asterisk by Robinson’s name, denoting the winner and the headline were done while Robinson was still ahead. Thus far the winner appears to be Ingrid Turner.

In the board of education primary, voters selected eight winners. Those eight will appear on the November ballot when voters will select four. The News Review regrets the errors.

Explore Movement

On Friday, September 29 from 1 to 3 p.m., Explorations Unlimited will host a presentation by Gretchen Dunn, a certified movement analyst. Dunn will introduce her upcoming class this fall, “Improving Your Moving,” a new course designed for people who want to improve their movement in everyday life activities. During this presentation, Dunn will concentrate on movability – a combination of flexibility and moving that can be relearned. She will also touch on balance, which is a combination of strength and movability.

With 25 years experience as an occupational therapist and a senior herself, Dunn is interested in working with others to improve movement. This led her to become a certified movement analyst, based on the methods of Rudolf Laban, the originator of Laban Movement Analysis. Explorations Unlimited is held every Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Community Center. This presentation will be held in the Senior Classroom, Room 114. Everyone is welcome to attend. Former Greenbelter John Francisco died of cancer September 17, 2006, in Elmira, N.Y. He was 82. He and his first wife June McCauley were married in 1945 and moved to 2 Court Northway in 1959.

Both John and June were very active in the Greenbelt Baptist Church where he was a trustee, a member of the Building Committee, Hospitality Committee and Safe Haven Program. Both were active in the Golden Age Club.

John enlisted in the Marine Corps the day after Pearl Harbor, serving in the Pacific and later in Washington, D.C., as an Honor Guard. He then worked for the federal government for 40 years as a machinist.

In 1999 John and June moved to Ohio, as their health declined, to be near their two daughters. June died in December 2000 after 55 years of marriage. John, a widower, later renewed friendship with his former high school sweetheart still living in New York, widow Helen Toby. They married on Valentines Day in 2004.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday, September 23 at the McKee Funeral Home, US Route #50, Augusta, W.Va., with interment at Augusta Cemetery, next to June.

Baha'i Faith

"God's purpose in sending His Prophets unto men is twofold. The first is to liberate the children of men from the darkness of ignorance.

The second is to ensure the peace and tranquility of mankind, and to provide all the means by which they can be established."

cent of women and 44 percent of men are illiterate, he says.

"The worst corruption problem is the infiltration of the police force," he maintains. "No one trusts the police. If a crime is committed, you won't call the police because the person you call may be the perpetrator. If you call the wrong person," he states firmly, "you're dead."

Culture of Violence

"There is a culture of violence that turns people against each other," he says wearily. For each killing of a Sunni or a Shiite, there is retribution. And the persons killed may have had nothing to do with the original murder. In one month, 1,800 bodies showed up in Baghdad," he says. "People are fleeing to Jordan, Syria and Kurdistan, if they can get out."

Renahan was especially saddened by the murder of his best friend, a 27-year-old Iraqi named Haider Al-Maliki, who had visited him in Greenbelt. He describes Haider as "one of the great young men of Iraq."

In a tribute to his friend, Renahan remarked that Haider

"aspired to be a diplomat for his country. He was a soaring talent, a rising star and quite possibly one of the future leaders of Iraq . . . . Haider was assassinated in a hail of bullets while sitting in a taxi at a red light."

"Why," Renahan asks mournfully, "was the life of this charming, intellectual, brilliant, charismatic figure extinguished so brutally and senselessly?"

Haider's death symbolizes to Renahan much that is discouraging about life in Iraq. "The violence goes beyond imagination," he says.

When not in a fatalistic mood, he says he is hopeful about the country's future. With over 90 percent of Iraq's revenue coming from oil, national revenues should go up, he maintains. Over time, there is great potential for a democratic government in Iraq, he believes. And he is challenged to help the Iraqi people create a better country and a better life. In the end, though, he concludes that the Iraqis need to "get it together themselves."

Animal Control transported one dog awaiting adoption to the vet for surgery, received one stray dog from a citizen, picked up one abandoned kitten and took an injured duck to the wildlife center. One bat was taken for rabies testing and one cruelty to an animal investigation for Prince George's County was done.

The horticulture crew hauled six tons of logs to be recycled into lumber or furniture.

The parks crew replaced the broken sliding board at Greenspring Park and installed wear mats under three swings and the end of the slide. Wear mats were installed under four swings and four slides at Buddy Attick Park, two swings and two slides at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center, two swings and one slide at the Breezewood Road playground. A spring animal at the playground near 5 Court Gardenway was repaired.

Did you know?

Do you feel restless, like you have lost your peace of mind?

That we don't know what to do and where to find satisfaction? Our Lord has the answer to all our problems, as He tells us that, "... He guides to Himself those who turn to Him in penitence, those who believe, and whose hearts find satisfaction in the remembrance of God. For without doubt in the remembrance of God do hearts find satisfaction."

the Admissions and Amusements tax forgiveness the city had granted Beltway Plaza in return for their keeping the Academy 8 complex operating when AMC Theaters decided to cease their operations last year. The issue arose as an unintended consequence of the city's effort to lessen the tax burden for Beltway Plaza as part of their agreement to upgrade the theaters.

This means that the only beneficiaries of the tax relaxation is the film distributors. Lessening the tax has increased the share of admissions revenue that goes to the distributors. The city manager will discuss this issue further with Beltway Plaza and come back to council with a report on the problem and possible solutions to assure that the original intent is achieved.

Conceptual Site Plan

Plans for the third new development/redevelopment in Greenbelt West are now part of a CSP submitted to M-NCPPC last month by the Beltway Plaza owners. Because of the timing of the "Stakeholder" worksession, this was the first opportunity for council to see what the owners of Beltway Plaza envision in their plans to address the potential new development, mainly to the rear side of the Plaza property, facing Breezewood Drive and opposite the Springhill Lake apartment complex.

The Beltway Plaza CSP provides a generalized concept for a residential/town center development encompassing most of the existing parking space at the rear of the shopping center and changes as well to some of the existing structures in the front portion of the center. Approximately 1,400 multi-family residential units are envisioned, generally as upper-level units over retail.

Also envisioned is a formal entry into the rear of the Beltway Plaza property in the vicinity of Cherrywood Terrace that would proceed through the existing mall structure to the front of the mall and access to Greenbelt Road. The plan also shows several new parking structures serving the new development. A medium size graphic representation of the CSP was available for review at the meeting.

Council Concerns

Members of council were pretty quick out of the box with comments, from the general outline presented. Davis was the first to register concern with the notion that the Beltway Plaza developers would consider naming the new expansion "Greenbelt Town Center." She was joined by her colleagues, concerned that such a name would be confused with the "real" town center at Roosevelt Center.

Roberts' first reaction was that the CSP looks "way overboard" considering other development plans for Greenbelt West. Especially he was worried about lack of adequate school facilities for the expected increase in population in the area.

Councilmember Leta Mach voiced similar concerns with the number of residential units being considered. She also focused on what type of housing (condo, for sale, cooperative, senior housing) would be possible for that area and especially the types of housing that would generate lesser numbers of school age children.

Wines responded that they were not thinking of development that would bring children. Councilmembers questioned if that strategy would work, once the housing was built.

Councilmember Konrad Herling wondered how the number 1,400 was reached, especially if the mission is to upgrade and improve the rear end of the shopping center.

Councilmember Edward Putens asked if commercial office or long-term residence apartments were considered.

Councilmembers also asked if the Beltway Plaza owners were participating in the Joint School Task Force recently formed through the efforts of County Council Chair Thomas Demoga to address difficult issues of school capacity and the need for more active recreation space to serve the expected increase in population from all three developments being planned for the area.

Greenbelt resident Brian Gibbons used the opportunity to urge the developers to think strategically about specific uses with more of an environmentally holistic view; i.e., reducing the need for automobiles, providing more pedestrian and bicycle friendly facilities, introducing low-impact-development techniques and green building principles and even consider design and construction, including features that would allow recycling at the end of their lives.

The Beltway Plaza CSP is tentatively scheduled for consideration by the Planning Board in November. The city planning staff are only beginning to evaluate the plans and will be discussing the issues with the developers and the M-NCPPC technical staff. Davis hoped that concerns raised at the worksession will be considered by city staff in making their recommendations to council before CSP is considered by the County Planning Board later this year.

Public Hearings Set For Schools Budget

There will be three public hearings this month, one in Greenbelt, to seek public input concerning the Prince George's County Public School (PGCPS) system's educational needs and priorities for the next fiscal year operating budget. Public feedback will be considered by Chief Executive Officer John Deasy when developing the Fiscal Year 2008 Proposed Operating Budget.

The local hearing will take place on Wednesday, September 27 at 7 p.m. at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. Parents and community members interested in speaking at the public hearing should call 301-952-6382 to register before 4 p.m. of the day of the hearing.

The PGCPS will also use an online survey to gain additional input from the public about priorities for next year's operating budget. That survey will be posted on the school system website at www.pgcps.org.

Gang Resistance Education and Training, which targets sixth graders; the Eddie Eagle program that teaches kids to stay away from guns; the D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program, last year given to grades one, three and five at both elementary schools; a safety patrol picnic sponsored by AAA; and the Walk-to-School Day program.

At Greenbelt the officers also participate in a PTA-sponsored pedestrian safety day. Springhill Lake students were taken out for bowling and pizza by the officers. A highlight for the kids on that trip, said Parker, was being driven to the bowling alley in Hummers loaned by Capitol Cadillac.

The officers also provide security for sporting events, dances, grad night, the prom and drama productions. Rogers said he rarely has to perform police duties at these events but he thought people feel safer because they see him there.

Both Parker and Rogers attended the annual conference of the National Association of School Resource Officers and put on a block of training for officers from other localities.

Rogers described the relationship between the school resource officers and school administrations as good, with school officials treating the officers like an extension of their administrative staff. This helps them do their job effectively, he said.

Councilmember Edward Putens commented that the involvement of the school resource officers with the students also contributes to the success of the program.

practices and economic impacts," according to the web site of the Alice Ferguson Foundation.

Elements of the Trash-Free Potomac Watershed Citizen Pledge include increasing awareness of the watershed's trash issue, properly disposing of trash and recyclables, stopping trash at the source by using recyclable or reusable products with trash-free packaging. The pledge also includes encouraging others to model trash-free behavior and participating in the annual Potomac River Watershed Cleanup. The foundation claims that volunteers at these annual cleanups have removed 2.5 million pounds of trash from the watershed since 1989.

Other sites nominated as trash hot spots in Greenbelt were Edmonston Road from Crescent to Cherrywood Lane, Metro Drive, the pond on Hanover Parkway behind the Bank of America on Ora Glen Drive and the sediment ponds near Greenbelt Lake. The selected site collected seven of 10 votes from REAC members. The city council approved the selection at its meeting on September 11.

Cool Cities Initiative

REAC also recommended that Greenbelt consider becoming a Cool City, a program of the Sierra Club with the slogan "solving global warming one city at a time."

Part of the Cool Cities initiative is the U.S. Mayors' Climate Protection Agreement, which urges federal and state governments to establish programs to reduce greenhouse gases to seven percent below 1990 levels by 2012. This is to be accomplished through reducing dependence on fossil fuels and developing alternate, economical and clean energy resources. The agreement urges passage by Congress of the Climate Stewardship Act to create a system for emission-producing industries to trade allotments for these global warming pollutants.

The mayors' agreement also outlines steps at the local level to reduce global warming pollution. Participating entities agree to inventory emissions and set targets for reducing them: to adopt land-use policies that reduce sprawl, preserve open space and create walkable communities. They also agree to promote programs to reduce commuting and increase the use of clean, alternative energy; make energy efficiency and conservation a priority and purchase energy-efficient equipment, vehicles and appliances.

Other steps are to implement and promote sustainable building practices, increase recycling, maintain healthy urban forests and promote tree planting. Helping educate the public about reducing global warming pollution is another commitment.

The agreement has been signed by over 200 mayors nationally, according to the Angeles Chapter of the Sierra Club. Local signers include the mayors of Sykesville, Annapolis, Chevy Chase and Baltimore.

Evaluation of this program and its practicality and benefits to the city were added to council's work plan, according to staff notes for the September 11 meeting.

The Department is offering a reward of up to $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in any of the unsolved crimes reported in the blotter. Citizens may anonymously report suspected drug activity by calling the Drug Tip Line at 301-507-6522.

A Review

“The Women” Offers View Of Glamour in the 1930s

by Carol A. Griffith

“Clare Booth Luce really knew her women,” writes Norma Ozur, director of “The Women” now playing at the Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC), concerning the playwright. It’s a very true statement: there are 22 parts in the play, all women’s, played by 17 actresses, many of whom are appearing for the first time at GAC.

While the comedy has a moral and in the end goodness triumphs over evil, there’s plenty of evil. Set mainly in New York City in the 1930s among a group of wealthy, high-society women, the characters gossip, lie, cheat, have extramarital affairs, get divorced and even have a hair-pulling, biting and scratching catfight, all in their pursuit of wealthy men and social status.

The women go to card parties and glamorous balls, shop at Sak’s and spend hours with the hairdresser and manicurist having their nails painted the appropriately popular “Jungle Red” as the plot unfolds amid twelve scene changes.

Some characters are more sympathetic than others – one drops ashes from her cigarette on her newborn’s head as he nurses – and several are comic. All are well-acted.

Claire G. Williams as Sylvia, leader of the group, Carol Randolph as the hilarious Countess and Jill E. Goodrich as the “good” Mary are especially effective in their roles. Danielle Dernoga, who is 13 years old, is excellent as the child trying to make sense of her parents’ behavior.

The play seems a little dated – many might insist it’s not dated enough – in its portrayal of the few women who work as unhappy and unfulfilled and in its theme of women needing a man to be happy. But it doesn’t detract from the fun.

Much of the humor is derived from interactions between the self-absorbed society women and their servants and others who attend them. As they pamper and cater to the socialites, the salesclerks, hairdressers and others despise them and often not-so-subtly insult them.

Malca GIBLIN, playing two parts; Sandy Hamlin as an exercise class instructor, Celeste Macmillan as the longsuffering servant Jane; and Penny Martin returning to GAC as the nurse are excellent.

Costume designer Sarah Kendrick has done wonders with the period outfits and the “turntable” arrangement of the various settings, designed by Bill Tchakrides, makes the frequent set changes quick while conveying the feel of a luxurious place.

“The Women” will play on Friday and Saturday evenings. September 23, 29 and 30 and October 6 and 7 at 8 p.m. Three Sunday matinees are scheduled for September 24, October 1 and 8 at 2 p.m. Reservations may be made through the box office at 301-441-8770 or at the Arts Center at 123 Centerway, located beneath the Co-op supermarket.

Riverdale Park Farmer’s Market

by Jim Coleman, manager

The Riverdale Park Farmers Market is bustling every Thursday between 3 and 7 p.m. with music, delicious food, interesting crafts from local artisans and, of course, fresh produce from local farmers through November 16.

It is a producer-only market which means people buy straight from those who make or raise their own products. The market is located at the junction of Queensbury Road and the railroad tracks.

Some of the local produce includes organic vegetables, fruits, free-range eggs and oriental vegetables. Shoppers can also find unique products made by local artisans and entrepreneurs such as pottery, crepes prepared while shoppers wait and handmade botanical soaps.

Guarneri Quartet Public Rehearsal

On Wednesday, September 27 at 5 p.m. the Guarneri String Quartet will hold a free open rehearsal in Gildenhorn Recital Hall of the Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center. Now in its 25th year in residence at the school of music, this legendary quartet presents its first on-campus open rehearsal of the school year.

Caribbean Concert

On Tuesday, September 26 at 5:30 p.m. in Gildenhorn Recital Hall of the Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center, Goombay will present a free concert “The Caribbean Experience.” With contagious energy, pulsating rhythms and upbeat songs, Goombay uncovers the contributions to Caribbean music made by European, African and indigenous peoples.

New Prescription Card Program

To help residents with rising prescription costs, the Prince George’s County government has launched a prescription card program. This program is open to all county residents, regardless of age, finances, existing health insurance or resident legal status. This is not a prescription benefit or insurance plan nor can it be used along with an individual’s existing prescription program.

The county prescription discount card can provide an average of 20 percent and as much as a 50 percent discount on commonly used prescriptions, as well as some over the counter medications. The greatest discounts are available for generic medications and those ordered by mail in bulk (for one to three months).

Even residents who have a prescription program may be able to benefit from this discount card on medications not covered by an individual insurance plan. Some veterinarian medicines for pets also qualify for this discount. Veterinary medication prescriptions must be written by a veterinarian but they cannot be used to buy medication from the veterinarian’s office.

There is no limit to the number of times the card can be used, as long as the card is presented to a participating pharmacist. In Prince George’s County there are more than 130 participating pharmacies. Call the Prince George’s County Health Department for locations of the participating pharmacies.

There is no registration, no fee for the card and no forms to fill out. The card, when presented along with the prescription from a health care provider, will be activated by the pharmacist. The entire process is HIPPA compliant so confidentiality is assured.

In order to obtain a card, residents may go to any county agency building or library and ask for a card. Cards were delivered to the Greenbelt Library on August 21. Homebound clients of the Greenbelt Assistance in Living (GAIL) Program who would like to have a card should contact the GAIL program office to arrange to have one mailed.

This is a free benefit. For further questions contact the GAIL program office at 301-474-8000 ext. 012.

WATER QUALITY

Mi Ae Kim and Susan Barnett received the first Jim Cassels (center) award for community service in June 2006.

Cassels Award

The group received the first Jim Cassels Award for Community Service in June. The monetary award is for a local organization that contributes to the community at large. The BCWWG will use this award to support the development of a water quality monitoring program for Beaverdam Creek. Such a program will help detect pollution if present, its sources, and also show any changes that may occur to the water quality. It will also raise awareness of water quality issues and help people better understand how to lessen their impact on the environment. To initiate this plan of action the BCWWG is organizing.

The Jim Cassels Award will be used to purchase necessary equipment and supplies for the water quality monitoring program. The group also plans to use some of the money to develop educational materials to distribute to the public regarding the Beaverdam Creek Watershed.

This is an exciting opportunity for the newly formed group. They are looking forward to working with the various stakeholders in the watershed and in addition they hope this workshop will further the connections between the three watershed groups in Greenbelt – BCWWG, Citizens to Conserve and Restore Indian Creek and Friends of Still Creek. All are invited to the free forum on Saturday.

The BCWWG has not been in existence for long but it has been busy. Its co-founders Mi Ae Kim and Susan Barnett with support from MWCOC began building the organization in January 2005 and had its first official public meeting in December. They have had various clean ups, bird walks and stream walks throughout the watershed in their efforts to engage the public in improving as well as enjoying this resource.

To reserve a space call Susan Barnett at 301-474-7465 or email susnbarn@earthlink.net. For more information about BCWWG go to <http://www.beaverdamcreek.org/>.
